RE: Double Diamond filing with Texas Supreme Court

Last night Double Diamond filed a writ of mandamus with the Texas Supreme Court seeking relief from the lower court's decision on the contempt charge against Double Diamond. The arguments filed are almost the same as were filed with the Waco Court of Appeals.

Mandamus is one of the extraordinary writs by which a higher court can mandate to a lower court. To seek it is an original proceeding, not an appeal. Its form is that it is a lawsuit against a trial judge, an appeals court or a government agency.

Your Board is monitoring this closely and will keep you informed as the situation evolves.
